Tutoring Experience

For more than a decade, I have guided students through A-Level, IB, and IGCSE History, specialising in modern history topics, including Soviet and European studies. My experience includes mentoring students for extended essays and research projects, enabling them to build critical thinking skills and achieve exceptional grades in competitive exams.

As a lecturer at Chinese universities, I delivered courses on modern history and international politics, helping undergraduates and postgraduates master complex historical narratives. This academic background allows me to provide valuable insights to students aiming for higher education in humanities.

Additionally, I have tutored international students from diverse backgrounds, tailoring lessons to meet varied curricula like GCSE, A-Level, and IB. My broad expertise ensures my students are well-prepared for exams, essays, and university applications.
